

La Giudecca nel XVIII secolo era considerata il "giardino delle delizie".

Accanto ai palazzi nobiliari (quali il Palazzo Vendramin, Dandolo e Palazzo Barbaro Nani) sorgevano conventi, Accademie e soprattutto, parchi, frutteti e vigne dove gli abitanti del centro, solitamente confinati in calli e piccole corti, potevano godere di ampi spazi e aria fresca.

Giudecca in the XVIIIth century was Venice's "garden of delights".
Alongside noble residences (such as Palazzo Vendramin, Palazzo Dandolo, Palazzo Barbaro Nani), there were convents, academies and above all, parks, orchards, and vineyards where city dwellers, normally confined to narrow alleys and small courtyards, could enjoy fresh air and open space.
